INDUSTRIES COMING SOUTH.

Up to the opening of the present year, nearly all of the Northern industries that sought a Southern location were of an iron nature. The cheapness of Southern pig was the magnet that drew these enterprises away from their long established mud sills.

That the South was rich in other cheap raw materials, beside iron, did not seem to dawn upon the Northern manufacturer, or at least, he could not get the consent of his mind to believe it.

Most of the marvelous statements regarding rich mineral resources were viewed in the light of "boom talk." But a few less incredulous explored the South, and returned home glib with the tales of the wonderful possibilities offered for every line of manufacturing industry.

Then the movement received its first impetus, and the present year has witnessed the transfer to the South of many scores of manufacturing plants, representing a wide range of industrial effort.

No State in the South has been more favored in their manufacturing hegira from the North and West than Virginia. Within only a few months time we have noted the establishment in the various new towns, of which Roanoke occupies the center, of every variety of enterprise brought from the West or the North.

During the coming year this industrial exodus will be increased in volume, and now is the time for Roanoke, and the wide-awake towns around us, to map out a campaign for securing these industries that are contemplating a change of base to the South.

THE OLD TICKET.

Here it is two years before the next general election, but the people all over the land are talking of Presidential candidates with as much earnestness as though they were going to vote next week.

The newspaper exchange reader, who occupies an observatory position and can note the trend of popular sentiment in every State, is better prepared than any one else to observe the astonishing unanimity in the opinion everywhere expressed that Cleveland and Blaine are the men who will head the Democratic and Republican tickets respectively in 1892.

That these two men have been brought more prominently to the front in their parties by reason of the outcome of the recent election, is a recognized fact about which there seems to be no divided opinion.

Mr. Blaine has probably more admirers to-day, both in and out of his party, than he ever had, and, as we write, we have in mind a particularly fair and able editorial in the Richmond Dispatch concerning the Secretary of State.

Mr. Cleveland's political strength has been accentuated by the result, and whether he be the choice of New York or not, there can hardly be any doubt of his being unmistakably the preference of a majority.

The same is equally true of Mr. Blaine. He is now pre-eminently the leader of the Republican party, as he has been the brains of it all along. It seems, therefore, most probable that the campaign of 1892, with Cleveland as the Democratic standard bearer, and Blaine the Republican nominee, will be fought over again.

THE SOUTH IS ALL RIGHT.

It is a matter for profound congratulation to the South that the great financial flurry that has during the past ten days sent Wall street stocks down like a plummet, has little or no effect upon this section.

The confidence in the material prospects of the Southern States is unshaken. Money matters with us are easy. The present season has witnessed the harvesting of the largest crops ever known to our farmers.

The fact of the business is, the South never was in a better condition in every way than it is to-day. The fondest expectation of her industrial dreamers have been more than realized.

But the end is not yet. The untouched mineral wealth that lies beneath the surface of our hillsides, the gushing water power that flows on unharnessed, the maze of standing forests awaiting the woodman's ax, the lavish abundance of a diversity of raw materials; all these are yet to swell the volumes of development and make this region the most wonderful on the face of the earth.

PETERSBURG.

Dr. Randolph Bardsdale to be Married. PETERSBURG, Nov. 24.—[Special].—One hundred Maryland veterans are expected here this week on a visit to the battle-fields in front of Petersburg.

Rev. R. R. Acree, pastor of the First Baptist Church, preached a special sermon yesterday morning to the three councils, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of this city.

Rev. H. C. Cheatham, formerly of Lynchburg, who, at the recent session of the Virginia Methodist Episcopal conference, was assigned to the pastorate of the Market Street Church in this city, entered upon his pastoral duties here yesterday and preached to large congregations morning and night.

Rev. George C. Vandershee, preacher of the High Street M. E. Church in this city, Mr. Vandershee has been assigned by the Virginia conference to the pastorate of the Methodist Church at Suffolk.

Dr. Randolph Bardsdale, superintendent of the Central lunatic asylum, near here, will be married on next Wednesday morning to Miss Mittie Patterson, a charming young lady of Petersburg. The marriage will take place at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Three other marriages will take place on the same day.

CONSECRATION SERVICES.

Impressive Ceremonies at St. James' Lutheran Church at Vinton.

St. James' Lutheran Church, of Vinton, was packed Sunday morning with people who went to witness the consecration services. Quite a number were in attendance from Roanoke, Salem and Botetourt county.

Rev. J. E. Bushnell preached the consecration sermon from the text, "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord." Rev. Mr. Bushnell's discourse was highly interesting and instructive.

The house was set apart for the worship of God according to the usual form. Rev. J. A. Haffard, the pastor of the church, conducting the order of consecration, assisted by Rev. Dr. W. S. Younce and Rev. W. S. McClanahan.

After the services, a collection was taken up and $300 was contributed, which is a sufficient amount to discharge the indebtedness for the construction of the house.

The building that was dedicated is a neat Gothic structure that cost $1,500, and was built largely by contributions from the congregation of St. Mark's Church, of this city.

The membership of the church is not large, but it is a band of energetic workers, and the outlook for the growth of the church is bright.

Rev. F. V. N. Painter, of Roanoke College, preached an eloquent sermon at the evening service, taking for his theme Christ's friendship to man.

THE ROANOKE AND SOUTHERN.

Work Begun on the Piers of the Bridge at the River.

The work on the first twenty miles of the Roanoke and Southern is progressing favorably, and the result of the labors of the different contractors is apparent along the entire line.

Contractor Conway has a large force at work grading the site for the depot and excavating the cut back of Mr. Terry's house. This work is being rapidly advanced. Mr. Conway's subcontract calls for the first four miles from the depot.

Mr. Harris has a contract for constructing the bridge and approaches, and began work on the piers yesterday. This portion of the work has also reached a stage of development which speaks volumes for the diligence of the contractor.

E. S. Moorman & Co., who have reserved for their personal supervision the last four miles of their contract for eight miles of road from the projected depot in this city, will have their camp near Cave Spring, and will operate from that point in both directions. They will commence operations Monday next.

Eliason Bros. will take up the contract at the point where Moorman & Co. leave off, and will likewise begin December 1.

Perron & Co. who have secured from Eliason Bros. the last two miles of the twenty mentioned, began work a fortnight ago, at the extremity of their contract, and are working toward this city.

A Church Burned.

The Lutheran Church at Timothy, Botetourt county, was destroyed by fire about six o'clock yesterday morning. Services were held in the church Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, and as fire was left in the stove it is supposed that the fire originated from a defective flue.

The house, which was a new and well furnished structure, was an entire loss.

ROANOKE'S FINANCES SOLID.

This Section Not Affected by the Depression.

Business Moves on Briskly and Does not Feel the Flurry in Wall Street—Roanoke's Financiers on the Situation—They are all Hopeful and Say That Everything is Safe.

Roanoke is a solid city and Southwest Virginia is a safe place to put money.

The recent pressure in the money market did not affect this section. Business has moved on smoothly and briskly, and Roanokers would scarcely have known of the recent financial troubles in New York and London had they not read the accounts in the newspapers.

The TIMES has been anxious all along to announce the interesting facts brought out by interviews with prominent financiers yesterday.

S. W. Jamison, secretary and treasurer of the Loan and Trust Company, one of the largest financial institutions of the State, was interviewed by THE TIMES man on the financial condition and outlook for the future.

"We have scarcely been affected by the depression in New York, and the trouble is all over. Business here is moving briskly, building operations are being pushed forward as rapidly as the mechanical facilities will allow, real estate is selling easily and there is no decline in prices.

"There was a little fear of the results a few weeks ago, but now that the trouble is over, and we have not been hurt, everything is safe and everybody feels secure.

"I have private advices from Northern cities that confidence is being fully restored, and that the effect of the recent depression will not be felt in the great money centers much longer.

"Our people should not go too fast. They should be conservative in their business transactions.

"This entire section is solid, and the recent money troubles have resulted in benefit instead of injury. If there is not an immediate rush of capital to this section, the recent depression has at least, demonstrated to the world that we are safe.

"The fact that this section has gone through the recent events in money centers without being affected will inspire confidence that could have been gained in no other way, and that will finally result in great good.

"A few weeks ago a great decline in real estate values was predicted. This decline has not materialized, and there is not any probability that it will.

It has been thoroughly demonstrated that investments here are safe, and are not affected by every wane in Wall street.

"We have placed large loans in Roanoke for our Philadelphia friends, when they had opportunities for loans at home equally judicious. These men have been here and have seen for themselves."

James S. Simmons, who keeps thoroughly posted on the financial situation, was also seen by the reporter. "This section," said he, "is perfectly safe, though there was naturally some uneasiness a few weeks ago. The trouble is all over and we have not been affected. Business moves on briskly, and the events of the past few weeks will create new confidence in this section."

R. H. Woodrum, president of the Commercial Club and prominently connected with many of the leading enterprises of Roanoke, regarded the situation as favorable.

"There has been no stringency in the money market here. Business has not been affected by the recent Wall street troubles, and the outlook for the future is bright.

"Of course a great panic would be felt here, but the flurry of the past few weeks did not reach us. The trouble is all over and the general business of the country is moving on satisfactorily."

Clara Louise Kellogg.

Of the Kellogg Opera Company the New Haven News says: They Clara Louise Kellogg Opera Company opened its season in America with the presentation at the Hyperion yesterday evening of Verdi's grand opera, "Il Trovatore." Her voice has lost none of its old-time force and sweetness, and the high tones are remarkably clear and full. It seems to be no effort to take a high C or even D. She takes the part of "Leonora" finely, with quite enough force and realization of its requirements. The cast is more than good.

Evangeline Last Night.

Evangeline was presented to a packed house last night. The audience was largely masculine, though quite a number of ladies were present, and gave abundant evidence of its appreciation. The attraction, or rather distraction, of the evening's entertainment was the shapeliness of the girls that appeared on the stage.

"Little Nugget" is the attraction for to-night, with indications already that the house will be packed again.

Mrs. M. Schaeferberger, Beaver Dam, Wis., writes: "We have used Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil in our family for Coughs, Colds, Croup and Rheumatism. It cures every time."

Ladies Have Tried It.

A number of my lady customers have tried "Mother's Friend," and would not be without for many times its cost. They recommend it to all who are to become mothers.
